H. N. Ayres, the Bridgeport shoe dealer, has decided to leave the settlement of the strike now existing at his store between good goods and no profits to the arbitration of the people. It does seem though, he said, as if there was something to be said on both sides, for when you come to sell a man's $6.50 French calf, hand sewed, cork sole shoe for $4 it must hurt the profit's feelings, or a lady's $4 shoe for $2.89, or $3 kid button for $2 On the other hand the goods declare that they have a right to be sold and if profits stand in their way they propose to annihihad a supper about 11 p. m., and danced late them. GREENFIELD HILL. MISS HALLAM-MR BURK. One of the prettiest weddings which The selectmen have posted notices forbidding coasting from Church hill in has occurred in a long time, in which the people of this place were so much inter ested in, took place in Christ church, Brooklyn, February 1, when George Edwin Burr was married to Lyllan Gertrude Hallam. The bride was given away by her father, Dr A. C. Hallam, and was attended by Miss Lottie Burr as maid of honor and little Trudie King as train bearer, who was dressed in pink satin. The bridesmaids were the Misses Barrett, Bell and Steingester, whose gowns were of yellow satin and grenadine and they carried white prayer books. John Morris Burr was best man and Messrs Winter, Boston, Burr, Marquardt, McMahon and Thomas were the ushers. The bride's gown was of white satin, beautifully trimmed with pearl passementerie and her bouquet was of hyacinths, roses and orchids. After the wedding ceremony, a reception followed at the home of the parents. The house had been lavishly decorated, white and yellow being the prevailing colors. The spacious parlors were artistically ornamented with palms, smilax, Ma.echal Neil roses, ascension lilies and dainty daisies here and there blinked in the light from the chandeliers. Mr and Mrs Burr stood under a floral bell and received the congratulations of their very many friends.
